The emergence of this government has a historical base evolved from aspirations of millions of people in the state of Andhra Pradesh who had desperately looked for a people-centric government that would lift them out of trouble and difficulties inherited during the recent past.

Soon after assuming power, the government with a genuine intention to bail out people from their grievances, has started putting in place several welfare initiatives that directly benefitted several sections of the population, especially the marginalized and vulnerable sections. Having completed a full year in office, the Government intends to assess the ground realities and impact of its numerous initiatives and also to get feedback from different stakeholders like user group/beneficiaries to further consolidate the efforts, devise future action plan and thereby set the stage for a healthy and competitive Andhra Pradesh. These initiatives which are essentially the components of the Navaratnalu programme that cut across sectors of farming, education, health, welfare and other sectors, need to be given new dimension to properly set the tone.
